

PRIVACY STATEMENT

Privacy statement of Foundation SuperACT, established at Marterstraat 66, NL 7559 AJ Hengelo, The Netherlands, Chamber of Commerce nr. 58439455, hereinafter referred to as "SUPERACT".

This page tells you about what SUPERACT does with personal data, how SUPERACT protects personal data and how you can exercise the rights you have under privacy legislation.

WHAT ARE PERSONAL DATA?

Personal data means any information that is traceable to you as a person. Your name, your home address or email address are examples of personal data. On the website of the Dutch Data Protection Authority (the Dutch DPA) you will find more information about personal data and privacy legislation.

WHY DOES SUPERACT USE YOUR PERSONAL DATA?

Whenever you wish to receive information from SUPERACT, we need your details so that we can send the information. SUPERACT also saves the data you provide. In addition, SUPERACT processes your personal data so that it can send digital press releases. In such cases, SUPERACT uses your personal data based on your consent.

Your personal data may also be used when you participate in research conducted by SUPERACT. SUPERACT carries out research based on assignments from parties from industry or government. SUPERACT is allowed to use personal data when conducting research. When special personal data such as health data are required for this purpose, SUPERACT always explicitly asks for your consent.

SUPERACT also registers your personal data when you visit SUPERACT's location. You must always be able to identify yourself with a valid ID. For SUPERACT's location, strict safety regulations apply because this location holds classified information. When visiting this location, the data on your ID is registered by SUPERACT. Your personal data will also be stored for a longer period of time.

HOW LONG DOES SUPERACT KEEP YOUR PERSONAL DATA?

SUPERACT does not keep your personal data any longer than is necessary for the purpose for which it is being held. If you have signed up to receive information from SUPERACT and you later sign off, SUPERACT deletes your personal data.

When SUPERACT completes a study or assignment that involves use of your data because you were a participant, your data are deleted once they are no longer needed for archiving purposes. By this we mean that for an extended period it needs to be possible to substantiate the results of the study/assignment by referring to the underlying data. In this situation, SUPERACT will protect the personal data by giving them a pseudonym or rendering them anonymous, if possible. Data that have been given a pseudonym can no longer be traced directly to you as a participant. Data that have been rendered anonymous can never be traced to you.

HOW DOES SUPERACT SECURE YOUR PERSONAL DATA?

SUPERACT attaches great importance to ensuring that personal data provided by you are handled and kept secure with the greatest possible care. In order to optimally protect your personal data against loss, theft, unauthorised access or misuse, SUPERACT takes the correct technical and organisational measures to keep your personal data secure, which includes the use of the latest security technology. In terms of organisation, SUPERACT has arranged for research data to be accessible exclusively by employees involved in the research in question.

DOES SUPERACT GIVE PERSONAL DATA TO OTHER ORGANISATIONS?

SUPERACT adheres to the principle that it does not share your personal data with others. The data will not be sold. However, there are exceptions whereby SUPERACT is required to give personal data to others. These are always exceptional circumstances, such as legal proceedings or crime prevention.

WHAT ARE YOUR PRIVACY RIGHTS?

Under the prevailing privacy legislation, you have various rights you can exercise to keep control of the personal data an organisation collects about you and uses. For example, you are entitled to access the personal data that SUPERACT has about you. This right of access is intended to enable you to check whether the data are correct and to make any rectifications as necessary. You can also check whether SUPERACT has used the data lawfully. As well as the right of access, you have the right to object against the use of your data by SUPERACT.

If you wish to exercise your privacy rights, please send an e-mail message to the following address arend.nijhuis@foundationsuperact.org

After sending your e-mail message you will receive an e-mail saying that your request has been received. You must also provide SUPERACT with a copy of your ID-card, passport or driving license in order to establish your identity.

In case you don't want to send in your request electronically, you can send your message also to SUPERACT's above mentioned address.

Your request will always be processed but this does not necessarily mean that your request can be granted. This is because the prevailing privacy legislation recognises exceptional situations in which your privacy rights are not valid. This may be the case, for example, where personal data are used to conduct research.

You will receive a reply to your request within a month. If your request cannot be processed within a month, you will be notified accordingly. SUPERACT is required to process your request within three months at the latest.

INCIDENTS (DATA BREACH)

In spite of our precautionary measures designed to give personal data the best possible protection, it remains possible that an incident may occur in which personal data are involved. An incident of this type is called a data breach. If you believe that a data breach is occurring at SUPERACT, always get in touch with SUPERACT. The best way to do this is by email via: arend.nijhuis@foundationsuperact.org You can also get in touch by telephone via telephone number +31 (0)53 489 3841. You will be put through to mr. Nijhuis.

The following information should be supplied when reporting a data breach:

- your name and contact details;
- the nature of the incident;
- which personal data are involved;
- which systems are involved in the incident; and
- when and how you discovered the incident.
